

Portland Tribune internships

Are you a high school journalist who enjoys interviewing people and writing stories about important community issues? Do you enjoy taking photos? Are you interested in helping diversify newsrooms?

Pamplin Media Group, through a partnership with Metro, is offering three part-time, paid summer internships to high school journalists in the Portland metro region in 2019. The interns will receive mentorship and training from professional journalists and Portland Tribune/Pamplin Media Group staff. The program aims to elevate and amplify the voices of students from historically underrepresented communities. Students of color, low-income students and members of other underrepresented groups are eligible to apply. Application deadline is May 15, 2019
